The Wrangler National Finals Rodeo is the premier event in rodeo, and the contestants who make it to Las Vegas often get the majority of rodeo headlines. Yet, there are many top cowboys and cowgirls who never make it to Las Vegas. The reasons are as varied as the contestants, but for most, the responsibilities of home, jobs or businesses keep them tied to a specific geographic location.

In other words, not everyone can, or wants to, travel thousands of miles each year for a chance at a gold buckle, but they still want to rodeo. It is a constituency that makes up the majority of the Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association membership.

Enter the Dodge National Circuit Finals Rodeo.

In 1975, the PRCA created a system that breaks up the United States into 12 circuits. The circuits can include as few as one state, such as the California, Texas or Montana Circuits, to as many as 13 states, such as the First Frontier Circuit, which covers the northeastern part of the country. In 1987, the DNCFR was incorporated, and Dodge became the title sponsor of all 12 circuit divisions. The event is presented by U.S. Smokeless Tobacco Co.

As the regular season ends, top competitors from each event are invited to their circuit finals rodeos. Dodge Circuit Finals Rodeo champions and year-end winners from each circuit are then invited to Pocatello, Idaho, to vie for Dodge National Circuit Finals Rodeo championships.

Contestants compete for points throughout the year, and the points earned within their circuit are applied toward his or her place in the circuit standings, as well as the world standings. However, points accumulated outside the chosen circuit are only applied toward world standings, and money earned at the Dodge National Circuit Finals Rodeo does not count toward world standings.

Qualifiers compete at the elimination-style event to determine the national circuit champions in each event. The tournament-style competition produces exciting challenges for the athletes and vivid entertainment for the fans. Each contestant competes in two preliminary rounds. The top eight contestants from each event advance to the final round or Wrangler Round, a sudden-death competition that determines the national circuit champion in each event. Each contestant begins with a clean slate in the Wrangler Round, ensuring an equal opportunity for each cowboy or cowgirl to claim a DNCFR title.

Event winners not only will receive a one-year lease on a new Dodge pick-up truck, but also, for the second year in a row, will earn an automatic berth in the first two rounds of the Ariat Playoffs. There the DNCFR winners will compete for a chance at some big paychecks and, if things go well, an opportunity to advance further into the playoff series.
